Is your child a fan of LEGO® or other building materials? Children at this fun social group will focus on building activities while also building skills! Kids will learn how to follow group instructions, take turns, talk with friends, and learn by watching what other kids are doing. Children who attend should be interested in LEGO® and building activities and have fine motor skills. You do not need to stay with your child for this group.

Your child will receive an individual treatment plan that will identify his/her goals for the group as well as the strategies that therapists will use to help achieve those goals. Your child's progress will be tracked and you will receive a progress report at the end of the group. This group is supervised by a Behaviour Clinician who is a Board Certified Behavior Analyst®.
